

The Economy of God

The All-Sufficient Spirit

The Spirit Is the Transmission of God

- God as the Father is the source, God as the Son is the course and the very expression of the Father, and God as the Spirit is the transmission of God into man.
- The Father is in the Son, the Son is in the Spirit, and the Spirit is in us as the very transmission of God, transmitting constantly all that God is and has in Christ.

The Spirit Is the All-Inclusive Dose

- All that the Father and the Son are and all that They have are in this wonderful Spirit.
 - God's divine nature
 - His human nature
 - His human living with its earthly sufferings
 - The wonderful effectiveness of His death
 - His resurrection
 - His ascension
 - His enthronement
- The sixty-six books of the Scriptures are a full record of the dispensing of God Himself into us. May we enjoy God Himself—not just dispensational doctrines.
- Too many doctrines in Christianity are distracting the Lord's people from the Lord Himself, causing them to miss the mark of God's economy.
 - The all-inclusive Holy Spirit dwells in our human spirit.
 - We need to learn how to contact and follow the Holy Spirit.

The Spirit Is the Mutual Abode

- Only as we are in the Spirit, just as the Father and the Son are in the Spirit, can we experience the mutual abiding.
 - We will talk with the Lord, and the Lord will talk with us. These are the practical experiences of the mutual abode.

The Spirit Is the Inner Life and Outer Clothing

- The Lord is the Spirit of life within us as water that refreshes, strengthens, and fills us with the inner life.

- The Lord as the Holy Spirit is also likened to clothing.
 - Clothing indicates power and authority.
- The Holy Spirit within is the supply of life, and the Holy Spirit without is the uniform of authority.
- On the day of resurrection all the disciples received the Spirit of life within them—they received the inner drinking of the water of life.
- It was by the Lord's ascension and enthronement that He gained the position to pour Himself down in the Holy Spirit as the authority.
- We need the Holy Spirit of the resurrection day as life within us and the Holy Spirit of the Pentecostal day as power upon us.

The Spirit Is the Life-Giving, Liberating, Transforming Spirit

- If we contact this living One in the wonderful Holy Spirit throughout the whole day, three things will happen within.
 - The life-giving Spirit will impart life.
 - The Holy Spirit will continually liberate us.
 - The Holy Spirit transforms us.
- No matter how long we have been a Christian, we still need the Christ of God as the life-giving Spirit imparting Himself into us, refreshing us, strengthening us, satisfying us, enlightening us, and filling us.
- If we contact the living Christ within us, He will immediately liberate us.
 - If we are in the Holy Spirit, we will be transcendent, because in this wonderful Spirit are the elements of ascension and transcendency.
- To be transformed does not mean merely to be changed outwardly but changed both in nature within and in form without.
 - The Spirit transforms our natural image into His glorious image.

(The Economy of God – Chapter 2)